Allison, OWCD's Mindy Eisenberg and I are fine with this statement, with the understanding that we may need to tweak the final statement based on what we get. A draft or a complete package as our actions will differ depending upon what we receive. Thanks Kathy

Sorry to be late on this. I'm okay with the statement with your caveat that we may need to tweak the final statement based on what we get. I don't think John/Sandra need to review – just be aware that the agency plans to have a desk statement when we get it.

thanks

Mindy and mike and Antonio,

Allison is requesting our sign off on this desk statement when we receive a package from FL.

Does John need to review?

I am okay with this, however I am concerned that it be considered final. It may need to be tweaked depending on what we receive from the state. I hear we are getting a package next week (so I hear the WH says). However having just spent three days with the state, if we get something next week it will be a draft, not their formal submission as it will not be complete. The state needs to issue a rule on how their program will be implemented, and they are still working on the rule language.

So while I am okay with the desk statement, not sure it will be accurate when used.

Thoughts on how you want to proceed?

First paragraph is rough/ confusing. Also, we need to be careful what we depending on what we receive. le draft v complete package because what action we can take differs based on what we receive.

I guess what I am saying is we can get a final draft done, but need to potentially revise when we get something from the state.

Hi! . I know Dave and Lee had a call re:

Also, any edits the statement we would

for review and approval when I catch up with them today. Thanks! -Allison
